PSS basically agreed with ELITech on new development and supply of the system (on an OEM basis)

Precision System Science Co., Ltd. ("PSS") agreed with ELITechGroup S.p.A. ("ELITech") on the essence of a new development and OEM supply agreement with regard to a fully automated system.

PSS has launched in September 2015 a medium-sized fully automated genetic testing device called "geneLEAD XII plus". After its customization, PSS has started, in January 2016, providing ELITech with their "ELITE InGenius" on an OEM basis. ELITech has been developing and expanding business in the world by focusing on infectious disease and organ transplantation field while combining PSS DNA extraction reagent and ELITech's quantitative PCR reagents.

This time, based on the success of mutual collaboration, both companies agreed to improve the platform based on customer feedback collected during these years and to expand the range of applications. Both companies expect that the new agreement will propose more reasonable and simpler solutions for clinical diagnostics users which require quantitative PCR testing and complicated and delicate work.

The contemplated new development contract would be expected to apply to various fields of future life science and molecular biology.

Regarding the impact of this contract on PSS business outlook, PSS will formulate a medium-term business plan based on the final agreement, and will disclose information accordingly.
